Northwest Iowa Community College Industrial Instrumentation & Control Students Win 1st and 7th in District ISA Competition

Northwest Iowa Community College's Industrial Instrumentation and Control (IIC) students took home first and seventh places at the District 6 Instrumentation Systems and Automation (ISA) Student Games held in New Richmond, WI on April 2-3, 2014.

Students on the 1st place team included: Phillip Altman, Luverne, Minnesota; Ben McDermott, Missouri Valley, Iowa; Chris Ewoldt, Hull, Iowa; Clayton Scheibler, Ashton, Iowa.

Students on the 7th place team were: Jesse McNeely, Hudson, South Dakota; Chad Bynes, Hull, Iowa; Daniel G. Rozeboom, Fairview, South Dakota; Alex Lange, Granville, Iowa.

The Student Games are head-to-head competitions between Colleges including technical/ community colleges and Universities in a 6-state area in the field of Instrumentation and Control. The competition consists of a morning hands-on practical exercise working with instrumentation equipment and an afternoon exercise working with electrical control equipment.

The International Society of Automation first conducted the International Student Competition in 1993. The competition provides an opportunity for ISA Student Members worldwide to demonstrate and further their knowledge of automation and control technologies, while enjoying the camaraderie and fun of the competition.
